He went to Manila with his regient, and it was on June 13, in the action at Capote River, in General Lawton's southern campaign, that he received his wound. With General Lawton and two companies of infantry, Lieutenant Donovan became separated from the main line of the American troops. It was a desperate situation, and the officers bent all their energies to get the men to a place where there was less risk of capture or annihilation. Lieutenant Donovan was standing facing the enemy when he shot in the left leg, just above the knee. He ecognized at once the serious nature of the wound, out instead of crying out he sat down and made a scientific investigation of it. He came to the conclusion that the bullet was either a Remington or slug. Then he started back for the main line. The detachment he had been with had marched on, and was alone. With a good sized bullet in his left limped through a rice field for about half a mile with infinite difficulty swam a river beyond, and then crawled and pulled himself across a wide His leg had become worse than useless A LARGE ADDITION TO THE GREAT HOTEL AT this time, and he received some aid from a er who was suffering with a shattered arm. Lieutenant Donovan arrived in this city from the Philippines on sick leave on September 38, the day of the Dewey parade, and he received an enthusiastic greeting from the officers of the 65th Regiment. His leg did not hurt him at that time, but it was stiff and unmanageable, so he decided to have the bullet taken out. This was done last Saturday by Dr. John A. A TANNERS' STRIKE ORDERED.

Lowell, Mass., Nov. 8 .- Six hundred employes of the tannery here, which was formerly owned by White Brothers, but which now belongs to the American Hide and Leather Company, struck today on account of a reduction in wages, which took effect last week. The strikers assert that there was a direct cut down of half a cent on beaming and an indirect reduction by a rearrange-ment of the grades of skins by which the larger grades were classed with the smaller. The agent refused to recognize a committee of the Tanners' Union appointed to confer with him, and a strike was ordered. The men have appealed to all tanners' unions in the East to aid them in their contest.

DEMENTED WOMAN HUGS AN ELEPHANT.

SHE LEAPS INTO THE INCLOSURE AT CENTRAL PARK AND IS SENT TO BELLEVUE.

The menagerie in Central Park was well filled with visitors yesterday afternoon, many of whom were startled by the sight of a well dressed woman who jumped the two and one-half foot fence of the elephants' inclosure, and then, lifting the bar of the stalls, walked up to one of the pachyderms U. S. A., who was successfully operated upon last and began to hug and kiss his trunk. She was Saturday for a bullet wound received in the Phil- clad in a black alpaca dress, a black slik shirt waist, and a turban hat trimmed with black velvet and feathers. She was tall and well built. Some of the children set up a shout and laughed heartily at the woman's strange actions, while men and women who looked on wondered what was the matter with her. Keeper Snyder ran in and with Policeman McDonagh took her away from the elephant. The animal seemed indifferent to the caresses he received.

The woman was taken into the Arsenal and a large crowd watched her. She said that she was Miss Lily Gillette, thirty-four years old, of Amer-Telluride, Col., and was received at 7

a. m. yesterday.

When the woman was asked why she acted so she said: "I'm fond of elephants and think as much of them as I do of men, and elephants think more of me than men do."

Then she added:
"I'm half Indian and half negro."

The woman, however is perfectly white. She was sent to Bellevue Hospital.
